Hero driver saved lives in his last act

59-year-old drove lorry to hard shoulder shortly before fatal heart attack

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsexnews.co.uk

A LORRY driver who died behind the wheel is being celebrated for thinking of others in his final moments.

Grandfather Jim McCloud, 59, who lived in Long Ley, Harlow, was found dead on Thursday, February 2 on the hard shoulder of the M25 near Heathrow Airport.

Shortly before he suffered a fatal heart attack, Mr McCloud managed to steer the 18-tonne vehicle off the busy motorway and put his hazard lights on, actions which could have prevented a serious accident.

His widow Margaret McCloud, 60, said: "It was a normal Thursday. He would get up every morning, give me a kiss and tell me he loved me. I always told him I loved him more.

Breakfast

"He had breakfast, went to Stansted Airport and loaded his lorry."

After this, Mr McCloud had driven to Heathrow and was on his way back when he had a heart attack.

His wife continued: "He must have not felt well as he pulled over to the hard shoulder, put on his hazards and what happened after I do not think I will ever know.

"At 4pm one of his bosses put out an alert. They sent someone from HR and they found him in his lorry. They called an ambulance and did CPR but he was confirmed dead at Slough hospital."

Mr McCloud was born in Glasgow and moved to Harlow at the age of ten. He met his wife through his twin brother Ian, the pair married in 1976 and lived in Harlow since.

With his wife, who works as a supervisor for Faber Music, the pair had two children James, 40 and Michelle, 39, and six grandchildren. For 20 years the family lived in Rivermill, Harlow and had lived in Long Ley for a decade. As well as his twin brother he had another brother and two sisters.

His brother James, who lives in Belfast, said: "The last action he did was to think of others. He did a good thing in the last moments of his life."

Mrs McCloud added: "All of his friends are saying he is a hero. His last act was thinking of others. An 18-tonne truck could have caused a hell of a lot of damage.

Loved

"He loved his job, he was quite happy. He never used his mobile and he was always aware of everything around him.

"He was a happy chappie, he was always winding people up and he laughed at his own jokes."

Mr McCloud, a fan of Celtic Football Club, had previously worked as a taxi driver and was well known among cabbies but his wife said he was family focused.

"He loved his family," she said. "He always picked me up from work but on that day he was not there, so I phoned up FedEx and they said he had been taken to hospital.

"I was told over the phone he had passed away. Everybody is so shocked."

Mr McCloud's funeral will be held at 4.45pm on Wednesday, February 22 at Parndon Wood Crematorium, Harlow.

Bottleneck is a vibrant coming-of-age story about becoming a man through adventures big and small. It's about a notorious city and its football culture. How the world views it, and how it views the world. Meanwhile, Spine charts the explosive relationship between a ferocious teenager and an elderly East End widow.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY: Mavis Pavey, from Harlow, celebrates turning 100

Centenarian Mavis marks landmark with celebration

Resident of town for more than 50 years gets greeting from Queen

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A WOMAN who has lived in Harlow for more than 50 years celebrated her centenary with her family.

Mavis Pavey was born on February 12, 1917, in Slough and moved to Harlow Common ward, Harlow, in the 1960s. She has lived there ever since.

On Sunday she received a card from the Queen wishing her many happy returns and hosted a small gathering with friends and family.

Her nephew Ronald Lucia, 73, of Coppice Hatch, Harlow, said: "She celebrated with neighbours, friends and family. She had a cake and all that.

"She looks very good and she feels very good. She does not really have a secret of getting to 100 but I think it is because she eats well. She does crosswords, keeps her mind active and she cooks as well."

Mr Lucia is not exactly sure when his aunt moved to Harlow but it is certainly more than 50 years.

After she married her husband Dennis Pavey, the pair lived in Poole but moved to Harlow when Mr Pavey found work in a small-arms factory in Waltham Cross.

Mrs Pavey, who worked as a seamstress, had two sisters and her younger sibling Iris is still alive aged 91. The couple did not have any children and Mr Pavey died 13 years ago.

Mr Lucia, who has lived in Harlow himself since 1950, said: "She has always loved where she lives."

"She gets on with the neighbours very well and has made many friends."

IN BRIEF

Worst waiting times at A&E

HARLOW: Princess Alexandra Hospital's (PAH) emergency department recorded its worst waiting time figures in December since records began.

Just 69.4 per cent of patients at the infirmary in Hamstel Road, Harlow, were discharged, admitted or transferred within four hours throughout the month.

The target, as set by NHS England, is 95 per cent. This represented the hospital's worst performance since emergency department records began on a monthly basis in June 2015.

PAH recorded a figure of 70.6 per cent in November and 82.2 per cent in December 2015.

The hospital is currently in special measures after the Care Quality Commission found it inadequate after an inspection.

Phil Morley, chief executive of the PAH NHS Trust, announced last week he would be retiring in April.

Baffling theft

HARLOW: A suspected pound shop thief was dealt with by police after he apparently stole items worth £3.59.

Essex Police constable Tim Knights said the force took action after the incident in Harlow on Friday (February 10).

The 17-year-old male shoplifter was handed a community resolution.

Pound shops typically only sell items that are worth the round figure.

Poundland in Broad Walk, Harlow, ceased trading on January 28. Remaining branches are based in the Harvey Centre and Staple Tye.

Five detained

ESSEX: Five suspected illegal immigrants have been detained and handed over to the Border Force after they were detained on the M11.

Essex Police officers were called to junction 6 of the motorway, which connects to junction 27 of the M25, just after 4.30pm on Thursday (February 9).

A spokesman said this followed reports that five people were seen climbing out of the back of a lorry. The five men detained were transferred into the care of the UK Border Force.

RECITAL: Pianist Christopher Weston

Lunch with Schubert's Winterreise

AUDIENCE to the next lunchtime recital at Old Harlow's St John's ARC centre can expect to hear the sounds of composer Franz Schubert.

Tenor Tom Raskin, and pianist Christopher Weston, will join forces for Winterreise.

Tom Raskin has received a multitude of accolades for his work including the Anne Ziegler Prize and Freckleton Prize.

He is also a recipient of a major scholarship from the Peter Moores Foundation.

Christopher Weston made his debut at the Barbican Concert Hall at age 16 and has since moved on to perform at a variety of places including at Kettle's Yard, West Road Concert Hall and Trafalgar Studios.

He also won first prize in the 2013 Brooks-van der Pump competition.

Franz Schubert's Winterreise will take place on Friday February 24 at 1.30pm.

Anybody is welcome to the recital.

Lunch is available from 12.45pm and costs £5.

SMILES: Just a few members of Harlow Deaf Society

Tamara hitting the right note with signed songs

'My signs interpret the song just as it's written'

By Charlotte Page

A WOMAN from Harlow has been working to create a bridge between deaf people and their access to music by signing out songs online.

Tamara Hudson, 35, has created a Facebook page to run alongside the work that she voluntarily does at the Harlow Deaf Society.

"Music is something that everybody enjoys the feeling of and my signs interpret the song just as it is written through sign supported language," she said.

"With British sign language, it cuts out all the little words whereas in sign supported English every word is interpreted.

"Artists spend a lot of time on these songs and each word is so important. Using sign supported language, I think is what makes me different.

"It allows me to help give deaf people full access to songs.

"I am hoping to branch out into deaf discos and deaf parties."

Mrs Hudson, who has worked as a postwoman for the Royal Mail

MUSIC: Tamara Hudson signs out popular songs for 15 years, has covered hits by the likes of Bruno Mars, Little Mix and AC/DC on her Facebook page which, after being launched last month, has almost 2,000 followers.

"People from all over the world can use the page," she said.

"Deaf people over in Germany may sign language differently but it helps through facial expressions."

Mrs Hudson, who was born in Harlow and still lives in the town, was inspired to offer something for deaf people having been the only hearing child in her family. She said: "My mum, dad and older sisters are deaf.

"I was born into a deaf family where sign language was my first language.

"I said to my mum and sisters, right we need to set something up.

"It's so important for people to learn sign language. I'm not saying that learning French or Spanish isn't just as important but you are more likely to meet a deaf person."

The Harlow Deaf Society, where Mrs Hudson is organiser, was awarded almost £10,000 by the Big Lottery Fund.

Speaking of the work that the society does, Mrs Hudson, said: "It gives people the chance to do things that they wouldn't normally do.

"From first aid courses to self-defence and bingo, we meet on the first Saturday of every month at the Women's Institute Hall in Old Harlow."

Tamara's Signing Songs UK page can be found at: www.facebook.com/signingsongsuk/

Body cameras for school staff

LUNCHTIME staff at a Harlow secondary school have been equipped with a police-style body camera that can be used to film students.

Support staff at Passmores Academy, in Tracys Road, can now record what they see during the lunch break.

Vic Goddard, the school's principal, told ITV's Good Morning Britain the cameras have benefited assistants and that class teachers were not filming students.

His comments coincide with news that cameras are being worn by teachers in other schools in a pilot scheme designed to tackle pupil disruption.

Support

Mr Goddard said: "Our midday assistants are very much thinking it helps them do their job better. It is not meant to be anything other than an aid.

"It's about improving what goes on in schools, not necessarily catching people doing anything badly."

Cameras are being worn by class teachers in two others schools in the UK as part of the scheme created by Tom Ellis, a criminal justice researcher at the University of Portsmouth.

They are visible and can be switched on whenever the staff member wants to record something.

A survey completed by the Times Educational Supplement found 37.7 per cent of teachers were in favour but 62.3 per cent were against – the main objection being a feeling pupils were being spied on.

39-year-old keen to give something back after brother's transplants

Emma going to Italy by Vespa to raise money for Liver Trust

By Charlotte Page
star@hertsexnews.co.uk

A HARLOW woman will ride a Vespa scooter to Italy "to give something back" after her brother's two liver transplants.

Emma Hastings, 39, will take on the five-day challenge to raise funds for the British Liver Trust.

"My brother Matt's case was quite complex and it's terrifying when you're in that situation," said the support worker.

"He became ill when he was 14 and had his first transplant when he was 18."

She added: "It's nice that this challenge also corresponds with one of my loves. I have always been into the scooter scene."

Matt, who is now 36, has autoimmune hepatitis, when white blood cells attack the liver. Emma will begin the 1,948-mile adventure in June alongside members of the Vespa LML Owners Club, but is feeling a little nervous ahead of the ride.

Massive

She said: "This is a massive test for myself as although I have managed to pass my A1 to actually drive on motorways, I have never ridden more than 20 miles, which is where my scooter is kept, in Norfolk."

"I've had to learn certain things like how to take my wheels off. I don't know what to expect, but I'm not going to back down."

Emma is still looking for sponsors to support her ride.

The total cost for the ride is estimated at £1,500, which will include £100 petrol per day, plus oil and emergency breakdown equipment.

"I've bought a GoPro camera to document my journey," she said. "I'm sure I'll need that when I'm sleeping in a field next to a cow or something."

Audrey Cornelius, fundraising manager at British Liver Trust, said: "We are so grateful to Emma for raising funds this way."

"An estimated 12 million people are at risk of liver damage and the issue is getting worse."

Add your town story to big new artwork

A LARGE-SCALE artwork showing Harlow residents will hang from buildings next month in a celebration of diversity.

Polish mural artist Jola Kudela has been commissioned to create the piece and is asking anyone with a story to tell about the town to be photographed for the event, called Claim Your Space.

Her work recreates works of old masters with locally based people taking the place of those in the paintings.

This Saturday, residents wishing to be involved can visit Harlow Library from noon to 4pm and share a personal tale with storyteller Glenys Newton.

Celebrate

Arts organisations and community groups are also invited along to share, showcase and celebrate their work for this second event in the Stand Up For Diversity series.

These events are being held as part of Essex Book Festival.

Essex County Council, Harlow Council and Arts Council England are among the organisations involved in staging the events.

22-year-old male launches petition to have terminations removed from the NHS

Christian student is standing by abortion Facebook comments

By Richard Brown
richard.brown@essexlive.news

A CHRISTIAN student who once asked a girl to have an abortion and compared it to "mass slaughter" has set up a petition calling for the procedure to be removed from the NHS.

Manuel Ngochinya, who is doing a film studies degree at Anglia Ruskin's Cambridge campus but grew up in Harlow, has claimed responsibility for the petition, which was launched on Wednesday last week, on his Facebook page.

While his original post attracted almost 550 shares, 6,000 reactions and 7,500 largely negative comments, more than 2,500 people have also backed his campaign.

The Austrian-born 22-year-old says his views on abortion were formed when he found God.

Speaking exclusively to the Star, he said: "After I became a Christian and following Jesus I started really thinking about the worth of human life.

"I looked at the science of when human development begins and it correlated with my Christian belief. I felt moved to stand for those in society who are actually the most vulnerable and voiceless, the unborn."

So far, his petition, on the Government website, has reached 2,563 signatures. If it hits 10,000, the Government will respond to it and at 100,000, it will be considered for debate in Parliament.

Furious

Manuel, who is president of the Student Life Society at his university, admitted that he received a furious backlash to his comments on Facebook, including death threats.

He added: "I expected a negative response but was surprised by the amount of negative attention that it received in such a short amount of time.

"I knew that I was wading into a taboo territory but I believe in the democratic value of freedom of speech. I understand why people are reacting so negatively.

"At first the comments were a bit discouraging because they came from acquaintances. Then when the hateful comments really rolled in, at first I was a bit sad.

"But I have a deep love for the people who are upset about this. They are valuable human beings with the same fundamental worth as the unborn."

He also suggested that part of the backlash came from the fact that men are often unwilling to take responsibility for pregnancies, citing his own history.

"I myself had asked a woman to perform an abortion years before I became a Christian. It stirred up anger towards my former self's complete lack of responsibility as I realised we live in a society in which men do not take their allotted blame in this issue.

"The whole thing was very cryptic. She told me she was pregnant, then told me that she wasn't, then that she was going to get it taken care of but that I couldn't come with her to the doctors.

Cowardice

"On the very small off chance that she was telling the truth, I want to claim full responsibility for my own lack of commitment, respect and outright cowardice. I will not hide that fact."

Despite the vitriol, Manuel said his friends and family have stood alongside him.

"My friends and family have been great in this," he said.

"One of the first arguments on the post was actually between a commenter and my mum, and I've also had many people check up on me since the petition went locally viral. It really has been an encouragement and it has also reassured me that I have done the right thing."

Robert Halfon on his life as our MP

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

ROBERT Halfon said being MP has been tiring and frustrating at times – but his love for Harlow has seen him through.

The Conservative politician said it felt weird to fulfil his dream in 2010 when he entered the House of Commons, but seven years and a re-election later he is proud of his achievements.

While he is now Minister of State for Skills and Apprenticeships, his political ambitions date back to his schooldays.

"I wanted to be an MP since I was ten years old," he said. "I decided after I came to visit Parliament."

Mr Halfon moved to Harlow from London in 1999 to stand to be its MP, but was defeated in 2001 and again four years later by Labour incumbent Bill Rammell. "I lost the election in 2005 by 97 votes, it was such a terrible time," said Mr Halfon.

"It was an awful day. I couldn't even go and watch Chelsea [the football team he has always supported] win the league."

On finally achieving his life-time dream in 2010, when he became MP, he said: "It was really weird. I had worked here and had done every kind of job you could imagine in the past. It was a really weird feeling."

"There is a tea place [in Parliament] and I was there wondering for a few moments when the MP was going to turn up before I realised."

"I have learned everything possible about Harlow and it has shaped my politics. One example is that I campaigned for the national living wage, which we now have."

Mr Halfon said another of his campaigns, lowering fuel duty, was developed after seeing first-hand how people in Harlow were struggling due to the costs.

Battleground

Harlow constituency was predicted by many to be a battleground seat for the 2015 election, but Mr Halfon was returned for another term with an increased majority.

On life as an MP he said: "It is non-stop. I get a few hundred emails a day and it is a seven-day-a-week job. It is not something you can turn off when you leave the building."

"It's a way of life. I am a workaholic. It is hard to take time off. Usually I have a break in August."

Asked about his favourite aspect of being MP, Mr Halfon said: "Without a doubt it is the community stuff, all the events going on, from church fetes to Chinese New Year."

"I love Harlow College. I have been there between 50 and 60 times. I love the Christmas events and Reading With Rob, which I do at schools."

"You need to love the town where you live. You need to have the skin of a rhinoceros as you get a lot of abuse. You become immune to it."

"You need to have stamina and you need to like coffee. There are no short cuts."

On his greatest achievement, Mr Halfon said he was most proud of helping secure a fuel duty freeze for the first time in years, but also of seeing Public Health England open a centre in the town.

His greatest displeasure is seeing the town's name named tarnished in the national press, as it was after a fatal incident at The Stow last summer.

He said: "They have no idea what really goes on. I think it is the best town in Britain and I am proud to represent Harlow."

On the future he said: "I am very happy doing my job in skills. I will be MP until people have had enough. If the public have had enough and want someone else I would not mind at all."

"I have achieved my dream and I have made a difference. I have no greater aspirations and I am happy to be doing what I am doing."

STAYING POWER: Robert Halfon twice stood unsuccessfully to become Harlow's MP before eventually realising his ambition

UNDER INTENSE PRESSURE: Princess Alexandra Hospital

Hospital has its worst ever waiting times

PRINCESS Alexandra Hospital's (PAH) emergency department recorded its worst waiting time figures in December since records began.

Just 69.4 per cent of patients at the hospital, in Hamstel Road, Harlow, were discharged, admitted or transferred within four hours throughout the month.

The target, as set by NHS England, is 95 per cent. This represented the hospital's worst performance since emergency department records began on a monthly basis in June 2015.

PAH recorded a figure of 70.6 per cent in November and 82.2 per cent in December 2015.

The hospital is currently in special measures after the Care Quality Commission found it inadequate after an inspection.

Phil Morley, chief executive of the PAH NHS Trust, announced last week he would be retiring in April.

A spokesman from the hospital previously told the Star the department is under intense pressure and residents are encouraged to consider other options before calling 999.

Fancy a fajita feast? Then check out town's new Chiquito eatery

TEX-MEX restaurant Chiquito has opened in the former Burger King unit at Harlow's Queensgate Centre.

Residents are set to add to the 100,000 diners that the chain serves every week in 75 restaurants across the country.

When the planning application for the new eatery was submitted in January 2016, it was reported that about 30 full and part-time jobs would be created.

From nachos and fajitas to burgers and steaks, a range of Mexican and American dishes are on offer to diners.

Alongside its lunch and main menu, Chiquito offers a brunch menu, cocktails, desserts and a children's and young-adult menu.

Prices for two courses on its set menu start at £10.95.

The company also recently

SPICING IT UP: Chiquito has opened at the Queensgate Centre announced that it has launched a gluten-free menu.

Students are able to receive a 25 per cent discount for their meal via the Student Club app.

Chiquito is part of The Restaurant Group, whose other eateries include Frankie and Benny's, Garfunkels and Coast to Coast.

Harlow Town Park's bandstand has been the scene of memorable concerts over the years, attracting some huge acts. As Harlow celebrates its 70th anniversary, Charlotte Page discovered more about its glorious history...

FROM Mungo Jerry to the Bay City Rollers, the bandstand in Harlow Town Park has seen some famous faces since it was built in 1971.

"The first bandstand was temporary and would travel around the town," said David Devine, history officer at Harlow Museum.

"Small jazz groups would hold performances in the market square."

It was not until 1973 that the popularity of the bandstand took off when a councillor recommended to the Park Recreation Committee that there should be pop concerts for teenagers aged 13 to 20.

He continued: "There were things for older people and younger people but not for teenagers."

"The idea was to supplement what the council was already doing and to hold around six concerts every year from 6pm until 9pm."

From pop and country music to Punch and Judy shows by 1979,

CENTREPIECE: Harlow Town Park bandstand

POPULAR: Punters enjoy Spurriers Cafe

Harlow residents had a full entertainment programme available to them for free.

David said: "The idea was that local people are already paying the council for their rates, so concerts were made free."

"Tickets stayed free but the council needed to have an idea of numbers and would give out tickets. They were like a raffle ticket."

"But a lot of people were also coming in from far and wide to see these bands before they became really big."

Scottish pop band, Bay City Rollers, was one of the biggest bands seen in the town park in 1974.

"They were on the cusp of becoming really big," said David. "At the Harlow museum you can find an exercise book of about 30 pages, where each page reads 'please' until the end page which says 'bring back the rollers'. They had a big impact on the audience at that time."

It was not just big names performing on the stage with many home-grown bands being offered the chance to support.

"Harlow bands would often be a warm up act. It was their chance to play alongside big names," said David.

"It was very forward thinking for the council by showcasing people with talent."

Although the free concerts stopped in 1991, groups continue to play there as part of Linkfest and from Harlow Rock School.

WHY WE LOVE THIS TOWN

AS Harlow turns 70 in 2017, readers are celebrating by sharing their favourite things about the town. We hope to collect 70 responses from readers across the next few weeks. Here are entries nine to 12

■ 9. Amy Jacobs, corporate partnership manager of St Clare Hospice

Favourite thing about Harlow: Local business community.

"My favourite thing is our local business community. We are lucky to be surrounded by a mixture of global, national and local businesses which makes for a thriving hub along the M11 corridor.

"It is promising that Harlow is constantly attracting new business and with the development of the Kao Park data centre and Harlow Science Park, the business future is certainly bright.

"Harlow Enterprise Zone is fantastic for the local business community. Harlow and District Chamber of Commerce works hard to promote all business members' interest. Running alongside is our MP Robert Halfon is the minister of state for apprenticeships and skills and does a great job promoting the business aspirations of our wonderful town.

"From a personal perspective, as a born and bred Harlow resident, I love the friendliness of Harlow people, the banks of daffodils and snowdrops along the roads in spring time and all the trees."

■ 10. Robert Halfon, MP for Harlow and surrounding villages

Favourite thing about Harlow: Church Langley water tower.

"My favourite thing in Harlow is the Church Langley water tower. As soon as I see it from the motorway after a long journey travelling back from Parliament then I know I'm nearly home."

■ 11. Neil Coster, head teacher of Pemberley Academy school in Hodings Road, Harlow

Favourite thing about Harlow: Pride in being from Harlow.

"I could talk about this endlessly, I love the town park, the pubs, the Playhouse and I also used to love The Square.

"The main thing I feel is a pride at being from Harlow as it's a town that my grandfather built, the town where I grew up and have so many memories of and now a town that I'm lucky enough to be able to contribute to as a teacher."

■ 12. Nishall Garala, founder of #BigUp Harlow Twitter campaign

Favourite thing about Harlow: The people

"The people of Harlow stick together as a community through thick and thin, and this really shows an excellent community spirit."

■ COUNCIL TAX

Residents' needs are paramount

I WOULD like to take this opportunity to fully endorse most of Mike Carr's recent letter (High cost of poor services, February 9).

For those readers who don't know Mike Carr, he is a figure whose comments should be totally respected as an eminent and effective spokesperson and representative of tenants affairs over a prolonged period.

In my opinion his contribution in such matters could well be said to be unmatched.

It would be remiss of me also to not pay tribute to his counterpart John Ford, who acted in a similar manner in respect of leaseholder affairs over a prolonged period.

I think it appropriate to make mention of a statement previously made in this publication by a then local councillor Manny Doku, I paraphrase, that his primary role was to scrutinise the council to ensure it was indeed acting in the best interests of residents.

Mike in his letter clearly identifies this as a key issue in respect of our elected representatives.

Recently there has been much national publicity given to a local councillor in East Anglia in respect of how he acted towards one member of the public in a social situation which resulted in his resignation.

How much more serious then is the example from a number of years back when the Portfolio for Housing at a Leaseholders forum, where he was unusually acting as chairman, saw fit to tell an attendee to shut up and that if they spoke another word he would close the meeting.

As you can imagine the views of those in attendance was that he was being rude and acting inappropriately.

It also undermines the existence and validity of 'The Code Of Conduct'.

All members of the public in attendance were doing so in their free time for the specific purpose of exchanging views and finding out information in respect of Leaseholders affairs.

No action was taken in respect of the behaviour of the chairperson at that meeting, in fact his behaviour must have been endorsed as he was invited to chair the next meeting.

It is also my understanding that minutes taken from such a meeting are a legal document and falsification of minutes is therefore an illegal act.

Yet there was no mention in the minutes of the portfolio for housing's actions in respect of him in effect denying the right to freedom of speech.

It had to be left to the subsequent forum when enquiries were made as to why his actions were not reported in the minutes.

This is an extreme example of the failure of our locally elected representatives to act in the best interests of residents.

Yet it highlights the need for disciplinary measures to be adequately enforced when councillors do step out of line.

I was the member of public told to shut up and I would welcome the opportunity to address residents on the subject matter of what was denied to me at that forum.

This would have to be at locally arranged residents groups where no restrictions are placed on those in attendance.

Given this opportunity I would endeavour to inform residents as to where some of the publicly raised money Mike Carr spoke of has disappeared.

I would also call on tenants and leaseholders to work together and not allow the policy of divide and conquer to succeed.

There is a saying the public gets the politicians they deserve.

I am sure many of our local representatives are well intentioned and diligent in the pursuit of their roles.

However, well said Mike, their prime role is to ensure that they manage the town in accordance with the needs of residents not the council.

Nigel Ayres
Sherwood House

Services are not improving

I AGREE 100 per cent with what Mr Michael Carr wrote about the administrating Labour party and the main opposition Tory party (High cost of poor services, February 9).

This is why, as a councillor, I abstained because the Tories promises that they can save money from council tax and said they did in the past when they were the administration party.

If this is the case, why did we, the people, not get an improved service?

Then the current administration party were saying we need to increase council tax to keep the likes of the play house, pets corner and the paddling pools active.

We are not receiving an improved service, which we should be from the amount of council tax we pay.

If anything we should have diamond and gold-sheeted roofs. Why do the current residents need to pay more council tax when thousands of houses are in the process of being built here in Harlow and on the surrounding borders? Surely that will bring more council tax in.

The houses that are on the verge of being built in Harlow should be strictly for the people of Harlow and not for the overflow of London and elsewhere.

Councillor Dan Long

Pay more and getting less

I AM responding to a letter by a Mr Michael Carr (High cost of poor services, February 9). Well done to you Michael we are all fed up with being squeezed by the administrating party of this town.

I can't afford what I pay now,

FIRST CLASS: Princess Alexandra Hospital staff have been praised by Brian Mooney for their thoroughly professional service let alone how other working families are going to manage when their incomes are not above the average salary.

The council tax is just an expensive and unjust poll tax.

It doesn't matter what they bring in to replace the council tax, we will still be fleeced.

The administrating party has increased the council tax every year since they have been in power here since 2012.

Have we seen an improvement of services? Have we heekers like, paying more but getting less.

■ NHS

Professional and very kind

I AM 84 and like Mr Pugh (World class treatment, February 2) I have recently had treatment at Princess Alexandra Hospital.

Fortunately my condition was far less serious than his.

I developed a lesion on my ear and consulted my GP who immediately referred me to a dermatologist at PAH, who saw me within a week.

The diagnosis was a carcinoma, needing surgery.

I obtained an appointment with the maxillofacial consultant within a few days and he booked me in for a day stay a week later.

I had the procedure on February 9.

The whole process took less than a month.

I can honestly say that the treatment I received has been absolutely first class.

Everyone, from the staff in the Hamilton Practice at Keats House to the consultants, nursing and admin staff at PAH have been thoroughly professional and very kind.

We hear daily adverse media reports about the NHS.

I'm glad to confirm that in my case they are entirely untrue.

■ NEWSAGENTS

Newspaper nightmare

IT'S A SHAME that Harlow does not have more newsagents, particularly on the outskirts of the town.

I live in the Sumners area and there are only two newsagents with at least 20 minutes' walking distance between them.

Other than that there is Staple Tye, which has two outlets plus Lidl, which runs out of papers very quickly. Yesterday, on a freezing Saturday afternoon, we endeavoured to purchase a Saturday Daily Mail, which is our favourite. Everywhere was sold out so we went further afield to Bush Fair, with no success there, then finally to the Stow shopping centre. We at last managed to buy one of a limited number of Mails left from the newsagents at the Stow.

We did not check if a magazine and TV guide was inside the paper as the polythene bag was visible, presumably containing a Saturday Mail magazine.

I was also bursting for the toilet having spent the best part of an hour driving around trying to buy a paper in the cold so got away as quickly as possible.

We did not go out that early but it wasn't that late in the afternoon either and we would have expected to have bought a paper long before then.

Once home, we looked inside the paper and I was puzzled that the Sleep Diary issued this week was nowhere to be found within the plastic packaging, until we quickly discovered that, unfortunately, the magazine contained within the paper was not a Mail magazine but one from The Sun.

This magazine had obviously been sneaked in at the last minute in order to sell the paper.

If we weren't 20 minutes away from the Stow I would have returned to ask for my money back (or at least another magazine that I might have liked, if one was available). To say we were annoyed is an understatement and we will not go back to that newsagents again if we can help it.

As the Saturday Mail is in such short supply in Harlow, perhaps newsagents could limit customers to one paper per person and disallow bulk buying which could perhaps be happening.

It's unfair on other people.

We have visited Epping on a Saturday afternoon and never had the problem with buying a Daily Mail as we sometimes do in Harlow.

We have looked into having our papers delivered but that does not seem to be an option anywhere either.

■ MEMORIES

Magnificent tales to tell

WHAT a wonderfully uplifting letter from Mrs Vickers in the Star last week (Key to the happy door, February 9).

It really set the scene of Harlow in its early days and kept me gripped from beginning to end, and I think the Star should make stories like this a regular feature to preserve the history of the town. The song Pram Town by Darren Hayman is the perfect accompaniment to magnificent stories such as these and is well worth checking out.

As for the present, and for all its supposed faults, I still love Harlow too. Thank you Mrs Vickers for warming up a chilly February evening.

■ THE SQUARE

Fantastic time at jazz gigs

I WAS very interested to read Charlotte Page's article re the final show at The Square (A fond farewell to The Square, February 2). Over 30 years ago it was, of course, the prime place for Jazz in Harlow (now The Marigolds Club in Harlow).

I particularly remember one special date, June 1, 1986. Harlow Council organised a 12-hour festival at the Moorhen with special guests Al Casey and Slim Gaillard from America, plus Georgie Fame and many more. It was outdoors and unfortunately, the weather was awful and after the first set, featuring Alan Barnes, I remember, it was rained off and we all had to retreat to The Square where we enjoyed a fantastic time until midnight.

Now, the music at Marigolds Club and Harlow Cricket Club keeps up the jazz tradition for Harlow and often features the aforementioned Alan Barnes.

BIG TURNAROUND: From 'requires improvement' to 'good' in three years

YOUTH CULTURE: Urban dancing at Little Parndon Primary Academy in Harlow

Joy for school after Ofsted gives the best rating it has ever achieved

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

LITTLE Parndon Primary Academy in Harlow has received a 'good' Ofsted rating three years after inspectors said it required improvement.

The school, in Park Mead, was graded 'good' overall and in all five key areas of inspection, which is its highest ever rating.

Head teacher Sophie Laing said: "The staff and I have worked relentlessly since my appointment two and a half years ago to raise standards for all the children here at Little Parndon.

"Together with great teaching, we have created and delivered a stimulating curriculum, full of opportunity that inspires and excites the children.

"Our school environment is a place where they feel safe, happy and able to aspire to their ambitions."

Converted

Little Parndon received a grade of 'requires improvement' in December 2013, after the previous rating of 'satisfactory'.

Since then the school has converted to an academy and come under the control of the Burnt

GOOD TIMES: Head teacher Sophie Laing celebrates Little Parndon Academy's Ofsted report Mill Academy Trust.

The three inspectors, who visited last month, found the school to be 'good' for effectiveness of leadership and management, quality of teaching and learning and assessment.

They were also rated 'good' for personal development, behaviour and welfare and outcomes for pupils and early years provision. The inspector wrote: "The school is well led by the head teacher, who is determined to give every pupil the best possible opportunities for success.

"The effective senior leadership team shares her ambition and vision for the school.

"The leadership team has brought about strong improvements in the quality of teaching and, consequently, good progress for pupils in reading, writing and mathematics.

"Teaching is not always challenging enough for the most able pupils.

"Consequently, these pupils do not consistently make the progress of which they are capable."

Mrs Laing said: "We are incredibly proud of our 'good' grading and what it now means for our community, as the best grading the school has ever achieved."

Race For Life all set to be run at town's park in May

CANCER Research UK's Race for Life returns to Harlow Town Park in May.

The charity is encouraging women to sign up to either a 5k or 10k race and help to beat cancer.

Last year's event saw £78,500 raised for Cancer Research UK.

Courtney Culverhouse, Cancer Research UK's Harlow event manager, said: "Race for Life events are non-competitive and participants can choose to walk, jog or run around the course.

"Whether they plan to amble with friends or sprint to the finish line, every step they take will help to bring forward the day when all cancers are cured.

"Every day, 90 people are diagnosed with cancer in the East of England."

SEA OF PINK: Last year's event in Harlow raised £78,500

One in two people in the UK will be diagnosed with cancer at some stage in their lives, while survival rates have doubled since the early 1970s.

Cancer Research UK's Race for Life will take place in Harlow Town Park on Sunday (May 14). Enter at raceforlife.org or call 0300 123 0770.

ATTACK SCENE: The Downs

Man faces attempted murder rap

A MAN has been arrested and charged with attempted murder after an attack on a man in Harlow.

Osa Akapata, 19, of Northgate End, Bishop's Stortford, was arrested on Friday in connection with an incident in The Downs at about 1.30pm on January 26.

After the incident, a man was taken to hospital with stab wounds, which were not life-threatening.

Akapata appeared at Chelmsford Magistrates' Court on Saturday, charged with attempted murder, possession of an offensive weapon, fraud and failing to provide a sample to police.

Because of the seriousness of the charges, the case has been committed to the city's crown court on March 13.

Akapata will remain behind bars until that date as a bail application was refused.

The teenager is yet to enter a plea to charges of attempted murder and possessing an offensive weapon.

He pleaded not guilty to one count of fraud and one of failing to provide a sample to police.

Indiana Karl whips up a storm with video tribute

Fan's homage to Harrison Ford films racks up 11,000 views online

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

INDIANA Jones will be in Harlow for his latest adventure thanks to a short film made by a lifelong fan.

Karl Heard, 46, of Potters Field, Harlow, has already donned the fedora, satchel and whip famously worn by Harrison Ford in his own 11-minute version of the film, which he shot around Town Park.

His tribute, Indiana Jones And The Search For The Lost Idol, created with the help of his family, has now been watched more than 11,000 times on YouTube since he uploaded it in 2011.

Since then he has uploaded two more videos and hopes to create a full half-hour-long production this summer.

The father-of-three said: "Every summer I make a movie with the kids for fun and if it looks good we will put it onto YouTube."

"I have expanded it to 11 minutes and now I want to expand it to half an hour."

In The Search For The Lost Idol, Indy continues his search for the elusive chachapoyan fertility idol with help from child character Short Round, who is played by his son Jamie.

Film-fanatic Karl, who previously featured in the Daily Star when he drove his Sinclair C5 around London, hopes to use tanks at Warley Barracks, near Brentwood, for his next film.

The footage was shot by family friend Daniel Call and also features villain Satipo, played by Ben Call.

Steven Spielberg is rumoured to be directing a fifth film to follow up 1980s classics Raiders of The Lost Ark, Temple Of Doom and The Last Crusade - which were followed by the Kingdom of the Crystal Skull in 2008.

Coincidence

Mr Heard added: "I just do it when I get some spare time. They are going to make a fifth Indiana Jones film, which is a funny coincidence."

"I want to get mine done first."

"Surprisingly Harlow Town Park made a good setting. Everyone was asking where it was shot, whether it was in Mexico or something, but I said, 'no, it was in Harlow'."

RUNNING BUDDIES: Greg Jurkiewicz (right) with Edyta Grzelak and friend Ian Mackay

Marathon date for officer with plenty to prove to police pals

Challenge will raise money for charity

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsexnews.co.uk

AN 18-STONE Harlow policeman is training to run the Virgin Money London Marathon.

Sergeant Grzegorz Jurkiewicz hopes to complete the 26.2 mile challenge to raise money for Sense, a charity which supports people who are deafblind.

The 33-year-old, known as Greg, said: "This is my first marathon. People (of a lighter build) run marathons and that is fine, but I am an 18-stone bloke.

Small steps

"The challenge is to do work with Essex Police and then put in the training. It is small steps. Firstly doing five kilometres is an achievement and then it is about pushing further.

"But everyone is different. I find running is a great way to keep fit for work."

Sgt Jurkiewicz has currently raised £750, which represents exactly half of his £1,500 target.

He said workmates have been supportive of his training.

"My colleagues have been backing me and have contributed towards the run," he said. "Some of them have said, 'yeah I want to see you do it', because I am 18-stone and 5ft 11.

Support

"I have been training since August and I have been raising lots of money to support a great charity," he added.

"Sense supports a lot of children who have done nothing (wrong) but they are deaf and blind. A year ago I did a challenge where I was blindfolded for 24 hours and I began to hear more – I noticed the birds singing."

New butcher, old-fashioned methods

A BUTCHER is hoping to continue some of Bishop's Stortford's traditions when it opens next week.

Final preparations are under way at Humphreys Butchers' new premises in Market Square.

It will be the fourth shop to be opened by Paul and Jane Humphrey, following outlets in Saffron Walden, Braintree and Bury St Edmunds.

The priority is for traceability and using local products as much as possible, with chalk boards detailing where the meat has come from.

Paul said: "We have chalk board in every shop and we see a lot of the cattle live on the farms.

"We believe in what we are doing. When you go to supermarkets, you don't know where it has come from, how long it has been in the bag.

Demands

"I believe in high quality products and high quality service. I think that the public demands this now."

Paul has been in the industry for 40 years as a butcher and also farms his own cattle.

Along with his staff, he is also a dab hand in the kitchen and is ready with hints and tips for how to get the best out of his wares. We are all great foodies – you have to be able to talk to customers in terms of recipes," he added.

For Paul, it is not the first time his trade has brought him to the town, as he was a visitor to Stortford's livestock market in years gone by before it closed.

Jane plans to highlight this part of the town's history and traditional butchers' methods when the shop opens.

LORRY FALL: Married mechanic had not contacted them for six months

Family tell of heartbreak over death of bridge plunge driver

By Conor Gogarty, Richard Duggan, Tom Dare and Libby McBride
newsdesk@essexlive.news

THE sister of the Witham man who died when his lorry crashed off a bridge onto the A12 and exploded has said "it was like he never existed" after he heartbreakingly vanished from the family's life six months ago.

Gurdip Johal, a 30-year-old mechanic for Harris Truck and Van on Wheaton Road, died at the scene after his lorry drove off Coleman's Bridge, landing on the southbound carriageway last Wednesday afternoon.

His sister Mandip Kaur, 21, said she is still in shock after being told he had died by their mother Manjit last Thursday morning.

Mandip, of Cowley Road in Ilford, revealed that Gurdip, who got married last April, was "like a brother and a father" to her, but she had become estranged from him in the last six months.

She did not even know he was living in Witham after he moved out of the house she shares with her mum and brother Amandip a year ago.

Screaming

She said: "I woke up on Thursday to hearing our mother screaming and crying and shouting. We didn't see him as much recently. We wish we had."

"He used to always message us and visit but recently it was like he never existed. He changed."

"He would only visit every couple of months for five or ten minutes to pick something up, and then he stopped six months ago. We didn't know what was going through his head."

Mandip added that she and her mother have been crying "non-stop" since being told of Gurdip's death. "I don't want to laugh or smile," she said. "How can I? I have lost my brother."

"It is so confusing because he is a good driver. He has been driving lorries for ten years and he would not allow anything like this to happen.

FAMILY BOND: Gurdip Johal with sister Mandip Kaur

"We had a gut feeling something was not right. It does not feel real — it feels like we are in the dark."

Emergency services attended the scene last Wednesday afternoon, to find the lorry destroyed by the side of the road.

The A12 was closed in both directions throughout the evening as recovery work began, made more difficult by the presence of 26 tonnes of wired batteries in the lorry container.

Metal railings from the bridge could be seen hanging down over the A12 where the lorry had broken through the barrier. A video of the aftermath showed a man walking around the wreckage with a fire extinguisher.

More than 15 miles of queuing traffic quickly developed and while the northbound carriageway of the road reopened last Wednesday, the southbound stretch remained partially closed between junction 25 for Marks Tey and junction 19 for the Boreham Interchange until Friday night.

Mandip said that after her father

MUCH-LOVED: Gurdip Johal, centre, takes a selfie with sister Mandip and brother Amandip er died 21 years ago, when she was only a few months old, Gurdip took on a paternal role.

"To most people, he might seem private and like he keeps his emotions inside," she said. "But he was a loving brother and he was a very intelligent, hard-working person."

"When we were younger, he was very close to me and Amandip."

Memories

One of her favourite memories with Gurdip was a trip to Woburn Safari Park about three years ago. She said: "I asked him to take me and my mum because I really like animals."

"That was really fun. Most of the time he couldn't do stuff like that with us because he was working a lot, so it was nice when we did get to do things. We are hurt because he is our family. He is my brother."

No one has visited the house after the news of Gurdip's death.

"We have not had support," Mandip said. "No one is helping us or seeing us."

The family of Mr Johal's wife's Mandy also issued a statement describing the accident as "tragic".

It said: "Gurdip was a dearly loved husband, son, brother and friend to everyone who knew him."

"He will be immensely missed by his life partner, Mandy Johal, and her family. He was a caring husband, always putting a smile on everyone's face."

Following the confirmation of Gurdip's death, Essex Police continued to search the wreckage for the possibility of further fatalities.

By Friday afternoon, however, the force had confirmed that he was the only casualty.

The Environment Agency also worked with Essex Police, the East of England Ambulance Service and the Essex County Fire and Rescue Service to make sure the batteries in the container posed no risk.

Speaking last Thursday, a spokesman said: "Initial assessment has shown that run off from the incident has been well contained and no damage to the environment has been caused."

The B1389 will remain closed at Coleman's Bridge until March 3 while repairs take place to the railings damaged in the accident. A diversion is in place.

BOOKSHELF

I'm a husband now. I can't just swan off to the jungle

As his latest children's book is published, Julian Clary talks to HANNAH STEPHENSON about love, laughter and why he won't be doing any more reality TV shows

HAVING just returned from a late honeymoon in the Maldives, after completing a gruelling schedule which included stand-up tours in the UK and Australia, a West End panto and his own wedding, Julian Clary is hoping for a quieter year.

"When you're really tired and can barely speak to each other, the Maldives is the place to go," the softly-spoken comedian observes.

In November, Julian – master of the double entendre, winner of 2012 Celebrity Big Brother, and all-round popular funny man – married his long-term partner Ian Mackley, in a small, private ceremony at Camden Town Hall register office.

Now the happy couple are back at their home in Aldington, Kent – a 15th century manor house once owned by Noel Coward – and Julian, 57, is busy promoting The Bolds On Holiday, his third children's book in The Bolds series, about the adventures of a family of laughing hyenas who live in Teddington, disguised as humans.

While Julian has no children of his own, he has a brood of great-nieces and nephews to test his novels on.

"My nephews and nieces have all now had children. There are six children around between one and eight, so there's plenty of scope," he says. "We're quite a funny family. We all laugh a lot. They understand my humour."

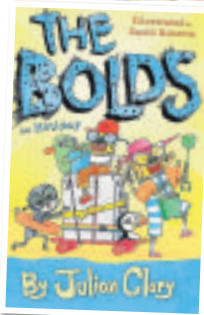

Did he ever want kids himself?

"Not really," he muses. "I've thought about it. I had a little pang the other day when I saw that Madonna might be adopting two more children. I thought, we could do that. But I'm a bit old now."

"My husband is younger than me and he's quite interested in the idea, but I think it's just talk, really."

Comic and author Julian Clary married his long-term partner in November

I don't think we are quite committed enough to do it."

But they were committed enough to get married last year – a celebration that Julian posted to his 215,000 Twitter followers, with a picture of the happy couple dressed in formal suits with floral corsages, as Julian signed the register.

He and Ian have been together 11 years, and Julian said it was a mutual decision to tie the knot.

"I was always a great campaigner for gay marriage, then found I didn't particularly want it for myself, and then it just came about," he adds.

"We both made our wills and it came out of that, really. We both thought it would be a nice day out. No one popped the question. It was more, 'When are you free?' We both looked at our diaries. We didn't tell anyone, it wasn't a big thing. We only had two people at the wedding – my sister and my PA."

Julian, who met his advertising executive beau in 2005 on a yacht in Ibiza, was adamant he wasn't going to have a big bash.

"I couldn't bear the thought of being the centre of attention in that circumstance. It felt like a very private thing between the two of us."

"We had a party later. People thought they were just coming to a party, but we hung the 'Just married' sign up in the hallway."

"I didn't think marriage would change our relationship, and I suppose nothing has actually changed, but I think we're being nicer to each other since we got married. It's a funny thing. You feel more committed, like you're looking out for the person. It's just subtle things. It's more romantic. I'm being more considerate, which I never have been before!

"We are both very independent, emotionally as well. We're not particularly needy with each other. We're just being kinder."

"Before you're married, there's this thought, 'Oh, I could always get rid of you and get someone more interesting,' he quips with a laugh, "but now I don't feel like that."

He wants to devote this year to writing two further Bolds books: he always imagined there'd be five in the series.

Julian, who's also written a memoir and three adult novels, says his mind's in a different place when he's writing children's books, compared with performing live comedy.

"I'm not trying to squeeze innuendos and graphic sexual references into it. I like the innocence of it," he explains.

Yet the panto he performed in at Christmas, Cinderella, was heavily criticised for being too rude for young audiences. Julian chuckles at the accusations.

"I did love one headline, 'Julian unleashes a tsunami of smut.' That will be on my next tour poster."

After two punishing stand-up tours last year with The Joy Of Mincing, he'll give himself some time off, he says.

"I like fading away, and people thinking you've died for a while. Because of the nature of my act, it's quite easy to have a bit of Clary fatigue, and if you go away for a while and then come back, people are ready for a bit of filth."

However, it's important he keeps performing.

"It's imperative," Julian admits. "It's what I started out doing and there's something very addictive about making people laugh. I can do that in the privacy of my own home, but there's something about getting out there, the creative process of touring and things evolving and occurring to you in the moment. I like all that."

However, he doesn't crave the celebrity recognition he once did.

"Oh God, spare me that! I used to think it was terribly important, but I can disappear now and come back and it's all fine. When you get to about 50, you think, 'Well, I'm only going to do what I want to do.'"

His TV appearances have dwindled in the last year, he realises. He says there are a few things in the pipeline, but none which he can talk about. Will there be more reality shows after his successes with Strictly Come Dancing in 2004 and Celebrity Big Brother?

"How about The Jump?" he retorts, laughing. "And of course I'm still lamenting the loss of Splash. I would have been very good on that!"

"I think I may have made my contribution to that genre," Julian continues. "I'm a husband now – I'm far too busy looking after my husband to swan off to the jungle."

LATEST TITLES

THE HEART'S INVISIBLE FURIES by John Boyne (Doubleday, £16.99 – ebook £9.99)

★★★★★ BOYNE'S latest foray into the story of Ireland is much funnier but no less hard-hitting in its social backdrop than his previous novels.

It centres on the lifelong trials and tribulations of Cyril Avery, a boy born in 1945 out of wedlock to an Irish mother.

Adopted by a pair of middle-class Dublin eccentrics, he strikes up a friendship with a spoilt, risky character, Julian Woodhead. That friendship provides the link through much of Cyril's life, told in the first person, in which he comes to terms with being gay in a country, that, until recently scorned homosexuality, his ill-fated relationships, the savagery of the church, the scourge of Aids and other real events which provide a backdrop to the story.

But Boyne creates lightness out of doom, humour out of desperately sad situations, creating a compelling page-turner that really tells the story of Ireland, as well as of a man trying to anchor himself in world with decidedly questionable values. A terrific read.

A GENTLEMAN IN MOSCOW by Amor Towles (Hutchinson, £12.99 – ebook £8.99)

★★★★★ DESCRIBED as The Grand Budapest Hotel meets War And Peace, A Gentleman In Moscow is quite a novel to behold. Towles' use of language is an absolute pleasure and you can't help but savour every word.

The story opens a couple of years after the Russian Revolution, during a time of ferocious upheaval.

A devilishly good-looking count, Alexander Rostov has been summoned before an emergency committee and accused of penning a counter-revolutionary poem. For the next several years, under hotel arrest, he forms relationships with employees, visitors and a young girl whom he becomes a guardian for.

Towles creates a memorable character in Rostov and this book brings something for everyone – humour, history, friendship and philosophy. Definitely worth a read.

FOOD & DRINK

DAMN good slow-cooked lamb belly that comes with a cherry glaze, coffee and dark chocolate crumb, and grilled sprouting broccoli. Like the show, this dish has a twist at every turn, as it explores the gulf between the veneer of small-town respectability and its hidden underbelly.

INGREDIENTS

300g lamb belly

Curing mix: 180g salt, 180g sugar, 5g orange zest, 1 pinch cinnamon, 1 clove, 1 star anise, 5 pink peppercorns

Cherry glaze: 100g cherry preserve, 1tsp fresh grated horseradish, 20g light brown sugar, 1 cinnamon stick, 1 star anise, 1 lemon, juice only, 100ml kirch

Coffee and dark chocolate crumb: 100g cocoa nibs, 100g Panko breadcrumbs, 100ml espresso, 50g cocoa powder, 50g plain flour, 20g butter

Pickled cherries:

Handful of fresh cherries (halved), 500ml white wine vinegar, 250g sugar, 500ml water, 3 bay leaves, 1 star anise, 20 black peppercorns

Pancetta and lentil ragout:

80g cooked puy lentils, 30g smoked pancetta lardons, 2 shallots (finely diced), 30g carrot, finely diced, Sprig thyme, Pinch parsley (finely chopped), 100ml chicken stock, 10g butter, 200g sprouting broccoli

Garnish: 6 pickled cherry halves, Sage leaves (deep-fried)

METHOD

1. Cured lamb belly

(prepared in advance): Mix the curing mixture ingredients together and sprinkle over the lamb belly. Leave for one day to marinate. Pour/scrape off the mix and transfer the belly to a vacuum bag and cook sous vide (in a water bath or steamer) at 65°C for 12 hours. When ready, take out and press while cooling. Cut into 150g portions.

2. Pickled cherries

(prepared in advance): Bring all the ingredients, except the cherries, to the boil and then chill. Pour over the cherries and leave for three days. For the cherry glaze, cook the ingredients together until the glaze reaches a honey-like consistency and then strain.

3. For the coffee and dark chocolate crumb, mix together the ingredients in a blender, then spread out on a tray. Bake slowly at 150°C, breaking up the mixture as it bakes so you are left with a crumbly, sand-like consistency.

4. For the pancetta and lentil ragout, sauté the lardons so the fat renders and a little colour is taken. Add the finely chopped carrot and shallot with the thyme and sweat down. Add the lentils and the stock and cook down until almost all the liquid has gone. Add the butter and the parsley and stir in. Leave to chill.

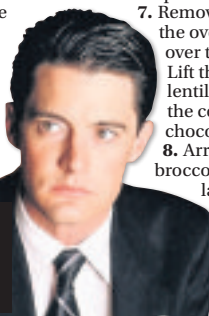

5. Take one portion of sprouting broccoli, blanch, and dress with olive oil. Season with salt and pepper and grill on a high heat to give a charred taste. Plenty of colour is fine.

6. Sear the lamb belly and put in a hot oven to fully reheat. Reheat the lentils and spoon onto the plate.

7. Remove the belly from the oven and brush over the cherry glaze. Lift the belly onto the lentils then scatter the coffee and dark chocolate crumb over.

8. Arrange the broccoli around the lamb and garnish with some pickled cherry halves and deep fried sage leaves.

Dan Doherty, chef director at London's Duck & Waffle, has created the ultimate TV dinners for Sky Atlantic shows

WATCHING TV was good preparation for chef Dan Doherty when he was asked to create some drama-inspired dishes by Sky TV.

Game Of Thrones, Twin Peaks and Fortitude were just some of the Sky Atlantic shows he ended serving up on a plate.

Dan, chef director at London hotspot Duck & Waffle, says: "Who doesn't love telly? I wouldn't say I'm an addict but when I get hooked to things I tend to stick with them and watch a load of episodes in one go."

"In my line of work I don't get a huge amount of free time so I record a lot and then catch up when I've got some time off."

Lena Headey as GoT's Cersei Lannister and Dennis Quaid as Michael Lennox in Fortitude

"I'm a huge Game of Thrones fan so getting the opportunity to create a dish based on it was brilliant."

"There's so much rich content to work with, and some strange combinations too, and it gave me another excuse to re-watch previous series!"

The dishes were available from a pop-up restaurant called The Drama Kitchen and Dan says they were over-run with orders.

He says: "We've had such a positive reaction to the dishes – interestingly not just from the mega fans of the shows, but also people who just fancy trying something different when they're having a night in."

■ Each of Dan's recipes was inspired by a different drama series on Sky Atlantic and are designed to make the viewing experience more dramatic.

■ Fortitude season two is on Sky Atlantic on Thursdays at 9pm. Game of Thrones returns for a seventh season later in the year and the long-awaited season three of Twin Peaks airs in May.

IF your eyes have strayed to this column before you'll know that I enjoy a scientific experiment with all things drink-related. This week I mix and match three tonic waters with three gins. Why? Because I like gin and tonic!

THE TONIC

■ I picked three – Schweppes Tonic Water (widely available), Fever-Tree Premium Indian Tonic Water (mine came from Bargain Booze, £3 for a 4 pack of 200ml), and finally 1724 Tonic Water. I've enjoyed 1724 tonic at gin tastings so for this experiment I bought a pack of four 200ml bottles from Amazon for £12.99.

THE GINS

■ Slingsby Gin (£39.99 at wslingsby.co.uk, 42% abv). I tracked down this gin because two people I trust – my daughter and a work pal – recommended it. It hails from Harrogate, is made from the town's spring waters and 17 of its 24 botanicals are sourced locally.

WITH JANE CLARE

On its own: Citrus bounds from the glass with rhubarb, followed by classic juniper, a ribbon of sweetness and to taste it has a creamy mouthfeel.

Schweppes: This tonic grasps and clings to the sweet notes of the gin to the detriment of the botanicals.

1724: Here we have a classier edge, fresh and precise and the botanicals are so expressive in a citrus cloud.

Fever-Tree: This tonic is used on Slingsby's website to illustrate how to make its perfect G&T. The tonic adds depth and brings out some earthy notes and heightens the citrus.

■ Kew Organic Gin (£28.95, www.laithwaites.co.uk 46%abv). It's not rocket science to realise this gin is made in partnership with the Royal Botanic Gardens in Kew. They used foraged seasonal flora from Kew together with traditional botanicals to make the gin.

On its own: Wow. There's a lift of floral, and a spark of spice with a cucumber freshness which flutters through.

Schweppes: I was disappointed with this tonic's effect on the gin which lost its subtlety.

1724: This tonic fabulously complements the citrus, the notes of cucumber and the tease of subtle floral notes.

Fever-Tree: This brings out the flash of spice in this gin and the bitterness of the tonic is a good counter-balance.

■ Oliver Cromwell London Dry Gin (£9.97, Aldi, 37.5%abv). This award-winning gin has beaten others in blind taste tests, but I don't think it has the sophistication of the Slingsby or the Kew.

On its own: I can live with a gin neat with chunks of ice – but not this one. It has a good citrus nose and a grapple of texture.

Schweppes: A fresh partnership which would be perfect for the 6pm watershed moment after a long day at work.

1724: The tonic softens the 'grapple of texture' and from within somehow a hint of lavender is released. I don't know how.

Fever-Tree: The quinine takes centre-stage in this taste combo – it's drier, the gin is there as a partner, but the tonic is leading from the front.

A MAMMOTH portion of Arctic meringue, with white chocolate crumble and anise marinated berries. As the stunning wilderness is shattered by more unsettling violence, this meringue snowscape mirrors the intense brutality as it runs blood-red with lingonberry coulis.

THE AORTITUDE

SERVES 1-2

INGREDIENTS

Meringue kisses and shards: 4 egg whites, 250g sugar

Chantilly cream: 200ml whipped cream, 100g crème pâtissière (see ingredients below)

Crème Pâtissière: 4 egg yolks, 2tsp cornflour, 60g sugar, 25g plain flour, 280ml milk, 1 vanilla pod (seeds only)

Chocolate sponge: 5 eggs, 150g caster sugar, 25g butter (melted), 110g plain flour, 40g cocoa powder

Lingonberry coulis: 500g lingonberries (if available, otherwise cranberries), 1 star anise, 100g sugar, 5ml port

Marinated berries: 500g lingonberries (if available, otherwise cranberries), 100g sugar, 25ml water, 10 black peppercorns
White chocolate crumble: 350g sugar, 100ml water, 400g white chocolate, handful of Aitsina cress

METHOD

1. For the meringue kisses and shards, whip the egg whites until stiff and then gradually add the sugar.

2. For the shards, spread thinly on a lined baking sheet then bake at 130°C. Bake for 30 minutes, then turn off the oven and allow to dry out completely with the door shut.

3. For the kisses, pipe on to the lined baking sheet then bake as above.

4. For the crème pâtissière, whisk the yolks and sugar until pale and thickened slightly. Whisk in both the cornflour and plain flour. Scald the milk with the vanilla and gradually add to the yolk mix while whisking. Return the mixture to the pan and place back on the heat. Cook until thickened before chilling.

5. Fold the 200ml whipped cream with 100g of crème pâtissière.

6. Whisk eggs, butter and sugar in a bowl and whisk until light and fluffy. Sift in the flour and cocoa powder and fold in. Pour the mix onto a lined baking sheet and spread out to 1cm thick. Bake at 180°C until cooked. Cool on a wire rack, then cut into rectangles.

7. For the lingonberry coulis, bring the ingredients to the boil and reduce until it is a syrup consistency. Strain and chill.

8. For the marinated berries, make a syrup from the sugar and water, with the peppercorns, in a pan. Reduce until almost a honey like consistency. Chill and add the berries and leave to marinade.

9. For the white chocolate crumble, heat the sugar and water to 140°C. Remove from the heat and add the chocolate and stir until it crystallises. Pour onto a lined baking sheet then allow to cool before crumbling

10. On the base sponge, layer two tablespoons of cream, meringue and one tablespoon of berries until it resembles a snowy, mountainous landscape. Cover with a pinch of the chocolate crumb.

11. Before serving, splash over one tablespoon of coulis on the meringue shards.

12. Use the Aitsina cress to garnish the base.

TAKE a culinary tour of the Seven Kingdoms with the Lannisters' signature dish, the lamprey pie - recreated as smoked eel and ham hock pie. A feast worth fighting for.

THE GAME OF THRONES

SERVES 1-2

INGREDIENTS

Short crust pastry:

400g plain flour, 200g butter, Pinch of salt

Béchéamel sauce: 50g plain flour, 50g butter, 500ml milk

Filling: 400g smoked eels, half a ham hock, small handful chopped parsley

METHOD

1. Make your short crust pastry. Sift the flour into a bowl, add butter and rub in with your fingers until the mixture resembles fine breadcrumbs. Stir in salt, and mix to form a dough. Knead gently for a short time then roll out on a floured surface. Line a pie dish with the pastry - leave enough for a pie lid.

2. Create a roux. Dissolve the butter in a pan and add the flour. Stir until the mix forms a smooth paste and cook for no longer than two minutes. Add milk to make a béchéamel sauce.

3. Chop the eels and mix with the sauce, before adding ham hock and chopped parsley.
4. Spoon the sauce and filling into the dish before adding a lid and seal. Use a knife to create a vent.
5. Egg wash the top and bake at 160°C until golden brown.

JOHN WICK: CHAPTER 2 (15)

THE GREAT WALL (12A)

East meets west in director Zhang Yimou's big-budget historical epic, which imagines a fantastical reason for China to build a great wall along the country's spine. Every 60 years, hordes of flesh-hungry monsters called Taoties rise in search of prey and a secret military sect called the Nameless Order coalesces to repel these creatures from atop the wall. General Shao (Zhang Hanyu) and his brilliant strategist Wang (Andy Lau) are in charge of the latest defence mission, dividing soldiers between five elite divisions with different specialities: Bear Troop, Crane Troop, Eagle Troop, Tiger Troop and Deer Troop. Two mercenaries, William (Matt Damon) and Tovar (Pedro Pascal), who are searching for black powder, stumble into the middle of this conflict and pledge their support to the Chinese in their battle with the Taoties. Another bandit, Sir Ballard (Willem Dafoe), is already aiding the Nameless Order and he helps the newcomers to acclimatise to their perilous surroundings.

THE FOUNDER (12A)

Ray Kroc (Michael Keaton) is a salesman, who neglects his wife Ethel (Laura Dern) to travel around the country selling milkshake machines to cash-strapped diner owners with the bold promise that if they "increase the supply, demand follows". His customers strongly disagree and Ray and trusty secretary June (Kate Kneeland) struggle to pay the bills. During a visit to San Bernardino in California, Ray takes a tour of the hamburger stand owned by Richard McDonald (Nick Offerman) and his brother Maurice (John Carroll Lynch), who have perfected a lightning quick cooking system. Ray scents a lucrative business opportunity and persuades the siblings to sign a contract that allows him to franchise the McDonald's model around the country. At first, the arrangement works well and Ray attracts numerous franchise owners. However, the contract terms prevent Ray from tampering with menu items, so he joins forces with slippery financial consultant Harry Sonneborn (BJ Novak) to wriggle through legal loopholes. The Founder pivots around Keaton; it's a bravura portrayal of a deeply flawed man, who put profits ahead of personal relationships and made himself obscenely rich.

Denzel Washington plays Troy Maxson and Viola Davis plays Rose Maxson in Fences which was also directed by Denzel Washington

Nominated for four Academy Awards including Best Picture, Fences is an assured film adaptation of August Wilson's Pulitzer Prize-winning play, directed for the screen by Denzel Washington.

The actor already has two golden statuettes on his mantelpiece for the films Glory and Training Day, and he is vying for a third Oscar for his showy performance here.

Such plaudits come as little surprise since Washington is well acquainted with the stage production.

He simmered with tightly coiled rage in a 2010 Broadway revival co-starring Viola Davis.

Both won coveted Tony Awards for their incendiary portrayals of a couple struggling to hold together their marriage against a backdrop of economic uncertainty and bigotry in 1950s Pittsburgh.

Reunited on the big screen, Washington and Davis rekindle molten chemistry and are able to suck us deeper into their characters' suffering with the benefit of lingering, tear-stained close-ups.

Fences remains unerringly faithful to its

FENCES (12A)

stage origins and feels rather static, unfolding predominantly within the rooms or backyard of a modest home where family members trade bruising verbal blows.

Strong-willed patriarch Troy Maxson (Washington) presides over this tug-of-war for supremacy.

He works as a rubbish collector alongside best friend Jim (Stephen Robertson), who loves to listen to Troy's anecdotes.

"You got more stories than the devil got sinners," quips Jim.

Troy toils in order to provide for his wife Rose (Davis) and their son Cory (Jovan Adepo).

The young man is a gifted athlete and is being scouted for college football.

Troy refuses to sign his son's permission slip because he believes the football leagues are rife with racial prejudice and he doesn't want his flesh and blood to fail, as he did playing baseball many years before.

This refusal to support his son's dream drives an insurmountable wedge between Troy and Cory.

"I'm the boss around here. I do the only saying what counts," barks the old man defiantly.

Meanwhile, the patriarch clashes with his other son, Lyons (Russell Hornsby), who only seems to materialise when he needs money.

Financial pressures tip Troy over the edge and his rage and frustration explode with devastating consequences.

Fences is a glittering showcase for the ensemble cast, led by the imperious Washington and Davis, who don't hold back in pivotal scenes.

The latter richly deserves her Oscar nomination, and she'll almost certainly win for deftly capturing the steeliness of a mother hen, who has sacrificed everything for her brood.

"I gave 18 years of my life to stand in the same spot with you. Don't you think I ever wanted other things?" she rages.

Period detail is impressive and even though there is a palpable lack of cinematic dynamism to proceedings, there are plenty of dialogue-driven fireworks.

MOONLIGHT (15)

BASED on the stage play In Moonlight Black Boys Look Blue by Tarell Alvin McCraney, writer-director Barry Jenkins' tender coming-of-age drama finds hope, compassion and salvation in the darkest places.

Moonlight glimpses abuse, regret and desire from the perspective of an African American boy struggling to come to terms with his sexuality against a backdrop of crime and punishment in Miami, Florida.

Neatly bookmarked into three chapters which capture the central character at different points in his life, it is an extraordinary film of naked emotion, broken dreams and deep longing that upends stereotypes and speaks loudest in agonizing silences between tortured characters.

Moonlight is a wondrous collaboration between a director at the height of his powers and a cast willing to lay themselves emotionally bare for their art.

Naturalistic performances from the three actors who play Chiron are exemplary, and Oscar nominees Mahershala Ali and Naomi Harris age gracefully between each polished act.

Every anguished syllable of dialogue glistens with authenticity, holding us spellbound as a curious boy becomes a damaged, yet gentle man.

Too many travel adventures to remember? Create a wall of postcards to bring back all those cherished memories

Mortar and mementos

Interior designer Lesley Taylor on how treasured memories can influence your home decor

Interior design trends come and go but memories last forever. Photographs, souvenirs and cherished possessions from times gone by all invoke wonderful memories; but more often than not these keepsakes are tucked away in the back of the wardrobe or packed up and stowed in the loft – rarely to be seen again.

I am all about embracing these important possessions, so I've developed six inspiring ways of merging memories with interior design.

Wanderlust

Look for homewares inspired by your favourite travel destinations, something with a touch of the exotic – a rich red Moroccan rug, artisan pottery from Africa or a chest of drawers inspired by items bartered and traded in a bazaar.

The possibilities are absolutely endless and with the rise of online shopping, you needn't book a trip back to that far away country to get your hands on some travel-inspired pieces – although it's a great excuse, should you need one.

Cultural homewares aren't only for the more traditional of decorated homes either; even in the home where there's a clear minimalist direction, a few carefully chosen items can serve as vibrant focal points, breaking up expanses of pale colour palettes.

Get creative

Who said your coffee table must be a place purely for practicalities – for collecting coffee cup marks and nothing more? Make your coffee table a work of art by choosing a metal framed, glass box and filling it with keepsakes.

Why not celebrate your child's first 12 months or remind yourself of your most recent holiday; a great way to sate those post-holiday blues.

Statement walls

Stencil art has become an increasingly popular way of introducing a little charm and personality into the home – and whilst there are plenty of generic, heart-warming sayings out there, today, technology makes bespoke stencils more affordable than ever before. Many providers allow you to simply upload images to be transformed into a stencil and shipped via the post.

A further idea is to team your artwork with photos – you could map out the generations of memories that lead to your family unit, with a family tree stencil cleverly teamed with photos of the latest generation.

Postcards from the past

Holidays take forever to arrive and whizz by far more quickly than we'd all like, then it's on to the next. You've likely forgotten just how many holidays you've experienced and memories you've made – give yourself a reminder, with a wall of postcards from every destination you've ever travelled to.

Child's play

Forget about hastily tacked paintings stuck to the fridge and that so-not-on-trend yellowing Sellotape that's threatening to come unstuck; allow your little protégé's work to take centre stage on pale walls and expansive spaces in bold, chunky eye-catching frames, or opt for an understated direction, and match your frames with existing woodwork or furniture. If you've seemingly birthed a mini Monet, who churns out masterpiece after masterpiece, you may want to consider a peg line – which can be added to every time the next great piece of artwork comes along.

Making memories

Get creative and encapsulate times from your past in a vase or jar filled with all manner of objects – badges, pebbles, sand and photos from different beaches around the world; or your baby's first photos alongside their first hat and painted foot prints.

Choose a selection of jars in different shapes and sizes and add all manner of different keepsakes for a unique feature wall display.

Even in the most inspiring glossy, magazine-worthy homes, interior design needn't mean keepsakes are hastily hidden away in a memory box. Interior design can be stylish and personalised in equal measure. So unleash your creativity and see just where it can take you.

■ Lesley Taylor is the author of 10 interior design books and has appeared on a range of network TV shows, including This Morning, giving inspirational advice on home styling. She lives in Wales where she is the Founder and Design Director of luxury interiors lifestyle store Taylors Etc.

TOP TIPS

Lesley's top tips for making memories work in the home

- Embrace the kids' artwork with funky frames or peg lines to stop them cluttering much-needed surfaces
- Use your passions to create unique homewares, like a jar filled with badges showing the logos of your favourite bands or keyrings from around the world
- Holidays and homewares go hand in hand; remember your favourite travel destinations with a postcard wall or pick a few of your favourites for a multi-aperture frame
- Inspired by furnishings from a recent holiday? Get online and start looking for similar pieces

SUNNY SIDE UP

By Lee Gibson

Scraping ice off the windscreen on a bitterly cold early morning is not the image which usually springs to mind when you think of a sporty little drop top.

It is, however, what I found myself doing on a couple days during my time with BMW's baby 2 Series convertible.

I suppose that's what you should expect when you have a cabriolet in the middle of the British winter, though.

BMW's blurb claims that the fabric soft top smoothly lowers and raises in just 20 seconds at the touch of a button, and at speeds of up to just over 30mph.

I am sure it does – but with the weather fluctuating between frequent downpours and plunging temperatures, the button in question remained largely redundant.

However, if the inclement climatic conditions left me feeling decidedly gloomy – then driving around in this stylish and well-equipped pocket rocket soon put a smile back on my face.

The twin-turbo 2.0-litre 230i petrol power pack under the bonnet is only available with this range-topping M Sport trim and proves potent in such a small motor.

Kicking out 252ps it will, when paired with the super smooth eight-speed sport automatic transmission I had, get you from 0-62mph in well under six seconds and on to a top speed of 155mph – while still offering a claimed 45.6 miles per gallon on average.

M Sport specification also includes the stiffened and lowered M Sport suspension which provides rock solid grip and super sharp handling – in short, the sort of dynamic and engaging drive that BMW has become renowned for.

The pay off for all that control and performance is a slightly firm ride but this only really becomes an issue over the most badly pitted road surfaces – although there are plenty of those around these days – and you'll certainly want to avoid too many potholes.

But where road surface and conditions are good this is a real driver's car – responding enthusiastically to throttle input, offering good feedback through the direct and accurate steering and allowing you to push on with confidence.

Firm dabs on the gas pedal are accompanied by a satisfying growl but otherwise this compact convertible is surprisingly refined, with insulation in the fabric roof keeping exterior noise at bay and its aerodynamic design all but eliminating wind noise around the seals.

Practicality is not at the top of the list for most people contemplating buying a convertible, but the 2 Series does have a boot big enough for a couple of weekend bags.

It's also a four seater, of course, although a look at the compact rear seats and you may think that calling it a 2+2 would have been more accurate.

Our 11 and 13-year-old kids squeezed in but I had to move the driver's seat a little further forward than I'd ideally have liked to make room and adults wouldn't want to travel back there for all but the shortest trips.

That said, you don't even get the option of squeezing those extra bodies in with a roadster – and the 230i certainly offers the same sort of enjoyment as most other two-seater drop tops out there.

Indeed, if it can put a smile on my face in deepest winter, just imagine what it'll be like in the summer, racing around the country lanes with the roof down and the wind blowing through your hair... if, unlike me, you have any hair that is.

Learning Support Assistants (LSA) (Level 2)

£14,578 - £15,940 per annum.
36 hours per week, term time only

We are also recruiting for Bank (Casual) staff
(work opportunities during term time only)

£8.05 (without NVQ/QCF Level 3) - £8.97 (with NVQ/QCF Level 3) per hour

An exciting opportunity has arisen for enthusiastic and committed Learning Support Assistants to join our school, you are required to work closely with other professionals in providing a meaningful and relevant curriculum to meet the needs of our pupils and students through various strategies both in and out of the classroom. Your responsibilities will include:

- Assisting with the development and implementation of individual education/behaviour plans and personal care programmes
- Support pupils/students to achieve learning goals and promote esteem and independence.

You will be expected to show a willingness to support pupils/students who can display challenging behaviours and a commitment to equality and diversity, safeguarding and the values and ethos of the Centre/School.

This role is for an average of 36 hours per week term time only, with some flexibility to meet service needs. You will be working Monday to Friday, 39 weeks per year.

Experience of working within a special needs environment is desirable but not essential.

A relevant qualification is important, i.e. NVQ level 3 or equivalent in SLLTIS

Closing Date: 23 February 2017 - 12 noon Interview Date: 28 February 2017

For an informal discussion please contact Samantha Steinke-Sanderson - Head of School on 01279 843451

We offer an excellent range of staff benefits including Optional childcare vouchers, and Contributory pension scheme. For full details, and to apply please visit www.stelizabeths.org.uk or call 01279 843451.

YOUR STARS WITH

ARIES MARCH 21 - APRIL 20

There is an air of urgency in your chart which could see you rushing work which would be better approached with tact. Don't let others force your hand, but decide for yourself what and who should be a priority in the coming seven days. The Sun brings out your need for security and you find yourself calling up those you miss. Ring now so we can talk about those mixed emotions.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 300 65p PER MINUTE

TAURUS APRIL 21 - MAY 21

There is a more confident feel to your chart which should see you feeling far more in control of where you are going and what you are doing with your life. Be nice to all new faces you meet in work as they are likely to hold far more power than you first think. Pisces link to a better home life which slowly seems to be taking shape. Give me a call to hear why you should listen to your dreams.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 301 65p PER MINUTE

GEMINI MAY 22 - JUNE 21

I can see from the power Mercury is exerting over you, that you will find it impossible not to say the first thing that comes into your head. Try to resist though Gemini, as you could end up offending someone you've only just got back on track with. Fresh starts with younger faces however, are very well started. Ring now to make the most of life and love.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 302 65p PER MINUTE

CANCER JUNE 22 - JULY 22

Your attitude over the last three weeks has been unpredictable to say the least. From Tuesday though, Saturn and Mars join forces to help you see with clarity what has really been going on. You may even decide that you owe someone an apology. Slowing down in all new relationships is your recipe for success. Ring now so I can tell you who your perfect partner would be.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 303 65p PER MINUTE

LEO JULY 23 - AUGUST 23

Try to show the power of perseverance Leo. It's what your sign was made for. News from far away brings out the need in you to plan a long distance trip. Don't rush your plans, as time really is on your side. More than you think my friend. A filtration from the past brings a revelation your way which fills in many blanks. Ring now so I can give you a glimpse of what's to come.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 304 65p PER MINUTE

VIRGO AUGUST 24 - SEPTEMBER 22

It's time to ask yourself if you want something or someone because you couldn't have them or because you care for them. Over the course of the next seven days this question is answered and life starts to feel more balanced and harmonious. Jupiter helps you find a way to replace missing funds and not a moment too soon. Ring now. I want to talk about these weekend!

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 305 65p PER MINUTE

LIBRA SEPTEMBER 23 - OCTOBER 23

Try not to let jealousy stand in the way of what was otherwise a very healthy relationship. This insecurity you are feeling has much to do with the way you have been reading too deeply into what others say and do. Working with fellow air signs Gemini, Libra and Aquarius promises you luck and should help you to get ahead of the competition. Ring now to reveal your true calling.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 306 65p PER MINUTE

SCORPIO OCTOBER 24 - NOVEMBER 21

You don't realise how strong you are and how much you've been through. I'm so very proud of you Scorpio and it would be worth your while taking a step back this week to recognise how very far you've come. Your ruling planet Mars could push you to ask for changes you don't really want within the family circle. Careful. Ring now to hear why it's wise to sleep on major decisions.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 307 65p PER MINUTE

SAGITTARIUS NOVEMBER 22 - DECEMBER 20

Happy times link to you finally admitting what and who can make you happy. For a long time you were living your life as others dictated and I can see that it really didn't make you happy. In recent days you've grown so much as a person and decisions you make in the next seven days will prove that you're finally on the road to success. Ring now to hear about the foreign shores that beckon.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 308 65p PER MINUTE

CAPRICORN DECEMBER 21 - JANUARY 20

I know you haven't been feeling as strong as you would like, but you're back, bigger and stronger than ever. If you don't believe me then why not test the waters and see. Going more independent or taking more control of your business promises to be successful at this time, so don't be afraid to push full steam ahead. Ring me to hear why arguments are not having the right now.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 309 65p PER MINUTE

AQUARIUS JANUARY 21 - FEBRUARY 19

There is a rather flippant air to your chart which could see you pushing for changes you don't really want just to see if you can get them. Fun times link to new faces with impromptu offers who can help you feel like you again. A broken relationship is given the chance to be mended this weekend. Pay attention. Ring so I can show you how good life can be if you communicate this week.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 310 65p PER MINUTE

PISCES FEBRUARY 20 - MARCH 20

It would seem to those around you that you don't really care about the effect your words are having on your close ones. You and I know that's not true and that you do care very, very deeply. Fellow Pisces can help you to be more honest about how you are feeling. Unexpected visitors are about to prove to you how much you're cared for. Ring now so we can talk relationships.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 311 65p PER MINUTE

DP Bodytone 300 Multi—Gym Small Multi Gym for the Home. I guess I bought this 25 years ago and last used it 20 years ago!! Scratches and blemishes but in full working condition and great for home exercising. The DP Bodytone 300 Multi—Gym uses a pair of adjustable hydraulic pumps for 6 different resistance levels. Each of the rowing arms can be operated independently or together to do either the standard rowing exercise or an alternating rowing exercise. By attaching the bench seat to the sliding seat poles and then laying on my back, two arm pullovers and alternating pullovers can be done to give my shoulder and chest muscles a work-out. By attaching the bench seat into the post near the feet and flipping the machine on end so that the bench seat rests on the floor, the rowing arms of the DP Bodytone 300 Multi—Gym can be used for squats, bench presses, bicep curls, shoulder presses and shoulder shrugs. Buyer must collect. £25.00 ono 07806 66725

Harlow win big as top two tie looms

Bonus-point victory comes ahead of Wanstead game

HARLOW Rugby Club warmed up for this Saturday's top of the table clash at Wanstead with six tries against mid table Basildon.

Just three points separate Harlow, who sit top of the London Three North East table, and Wanstead in second place ahead of their clash, although Harlow do have a game in hand.

Despite the wet pitch making running rugby difficult, Harlow produced a good performance to give themselves a 37-20 bonus-point win over Basildon.

Playing with the slope in their favour Basildon started well, pressing Harlow back into their own 22 and they drew first blood after seven minutes, driving Harlow back for an unconverted try.

After 20 minutes of hard contested rugby Ross Stalley slotted a penalty to reduce the margin to two points.

Harlow were beginning to work their way back into the game and played much more rugby in the Basildon half.

A drive from the pack saw hooker Mark Bowering go over the line out wide to give Harlow the lead.

Then just minutes before the interval, Harlow launched another attack and Ryan McGlone, playing at full-back in the absence of Rob Mackie, came into the line and powered his way over for the second try of the afternoon.

Stalley made no mistake with the conversion to make the score 15-5, before Scott Whitby produced real pace to run in another try.

Stalley missed this conversion and Basildon came back with another try in the closing seconds of the half to make it 20-10 at the turnaround.

From the kick off Basildon were straight in to the attack and took advantage of a sleeping Harlow defence to cut the deficit to just five points.

Harlow sensed the danger and hit back quickly with number eight Kain Claridge peeling off from a maul to score; Stalley converted to make it 27-15 to Harlow.

Almost immediately Harlow were back on the attack and this time it was Stalley sprinting through for another try.

With 20 minutes to go Basildon added another score to pull within 12 points of the hosts at 32-12, but Harlow were to have the last laugh.

With the clock ticking down Whitby scored his second try of the game to give them a 37-20 win ahead of their mouth-watering clash with Wanstead at the weekend.

Havant end four-match winning run

HARLOW Town's four game winning run was ended on Saturday as they were beaten 2-0 at home to Havant & Waterlooville.

The Hawks stay in seventh place in the Ryman Premier table on 50 points after suffering their fourth home loss of the season.

Danny Chapman's side had been playing brilliantly, and were looking to beat Havant to become serious challengers for the play-off places, but the third placed side were too strong on the day for the Hawks.

The first half lacked spark, and both sides failed to test either keeper.

Forwards Alex Read, Fabion Simms and Junior Dadson were not given many opportunities despite their hard work.

After the interval, the game livened up but sadly for Harlow, the away side broke the deadlock.

Striker Alfie Rutherford chipped the ball over the Hawks defence, and found midfielder Theo Lewis, who controlled brilliantly and stroked home after 53 minutes.

There was a lot of pressure from the home side, and they were battling to get back into the game, but they only forced saves from keeper Ryan Young a few times in the second half.

As the 90 minute mark approached, Havant and Waterlooville got their second and sealed the win.

They hit the Hawks on the counter, as substitutes George Baker and Wesley Fogden combined to get in behind the defence, and Fogden, who played for Portsmouth and Bournemouth, finished well.

It was a disappointing day for Chapman and his boys, but it was not the sort of performance expected from a Harlow Town side at the moment.

Their free-flowing play did not get started and the gritty affair was won by a clinical Havant side, who are looking to challenge Bognor Regis and Needham Market for the title.

The result does not mean Harlow are out of the play-off contention but they are five points off fifth and have played two or three games more than many of the other challengers.

This Saturday Hawks are away to Merstham, who are fighting relegation in 20th place, but it will be a tough game as they have won their last two games.

Running club celebrate with a night of awards

THERE were plenty of trophies handed out as Harlow Running Club held their awards evening over the weekend.

There were different award categories as team captain awards, club championship awards, handicap awards, the ultra distance award, club person of the year and the triathlon club awards were all handed out.

The captains of the men's and women's teams rewarded their teams who had performed well over the past year.

The winners were: female road runner: Wendy Schroder; male road runner: Rob Lowe; female cross country: Anna Robey; male cross country: Rich Hynes; most consistent female: Michelle Hyde; most consistent male:

Martyn Coulter; most improved female: Sharon Wright; most improved male: Paul Schroeder; most improved new female: Laura Jephcott; most improved new male: Afewerk Rossom.

The club championship awards are held throughout the year, over a total of 20 races of various distances and terrain, with a runner's ten best performances counting towards the final positions.

Performances are based on age graded World Association of Veteran Athletes calculations, meaning all age groups are equal. The Championship is also used to decide the club's ten age category awards.

The winners of the club championship and age category awards were: club championship

CELEBRATION: The award winners hold their trophies aloft
